Auditor's Office issues Clark County Cash Reviews for 2001-2002

Vancouver, WA---The Internal Audit Department of the Auditor's Office conducts internal control reviews of selected receipting functions, change funds, checking accounts, and petty cash funds that are located in departments around the County. This report covers two years – 2001 and 2002 – and provides a summary of the internal control findings and recommendations stemming from this work.

County auditor Greg Kimsey stated "these reviews help safeguard the public's assets and educate management to the importance of internal controls. While no major problems were discovered as a result of our work, we did make recommendations that if implemented will strengthen these controls and improve accountability."
